

CHRISS W. STREET
TREASURER-TAX COLLECTOR

Chriss Street is uniquely qualified to be our next Treasurer-Tax Collector.

Orange County Treasurer-Tax Collector John Moorlach trusts Chriss Street to replace him as do many others. Supervisors Chris Norby, Jim Silva, Bill Campbell; District Attorney Tony Rackauckas, members of City Councils, School Boards and Water Districts also understand Chriss Street possesses the proper skill set required for this position and have enthusiastically endorsed his candidacy.

In March 1994, Chriss Street pulled papers to challenge then-Treasurer Bob Citron, a former client of Street's, because he knew the investment strategy being pursued would likely implode should interest rates increase. At the same time he met a CPA named John Moorlach who shared the same concerns about the safety of the investment pools. After a brief discussion, Street agreed to support Moorlach in his run against Citron, and the rest is history.

Following the County filing for bankruptcy protection, Moorlach was appointed Treasurer-Tax Collector and Chriss Street has been among John's closest advisors. Moorlach and Street served together on the Orange County Employees Retirement System Board.

Chriss Street also serves on the Treasurer's Advisory Committee and the Orange County Treasurer's Conference Host Committee, where he was featured in the award winning documentary "When Money Talks, the Truth is Silent" chronicling the 10th Anniversary of the Orange County Bankruptcy. He also was the financial advisor to the Ad Hoc Committee of Secured Creditors in the Matter of Southern California Edison.

In recognition of Street's breadth of experience as a leading Registered Money Manager, CEO of several New York Stock Exchange listed corporations, and corporate restructuring specialist, Moorlach appointed Chriss Street Assistant Treasurer-Tax Collector.

For the past 25 years, Chriss Street has excelled in money management, investment banking, corporate restructuring and financial advisory while maintaining an active civic, charitable and family life.

A native Californian, Chriss Street is a Registered Investment Advisor who received his Bachelors in Economics from UC Irvine and is a graduate of the Stanford Business School. He is married with three children and lives in Newport Beach.

Chriss Street is past president of the Orange County Republican Party Silver Circle, the founder of the non-profit international organization Books for Freedom, and raised over $100,000 for the Corona del Mar Water Polo Foundation.

Chriss Street will continue the tradition of keeping our money safe and secure. Please join John Moorlach and other leaders and taxpayers in supporting Chriss Street for Orange County Treasurer-Tax Collector.
